For sponsors

On 12-13 of April a RuPy – Ruby & Python Conference will take place in Poznan. It is an international conference dedicated to modern IT technologies and is organized by a GIK (Grupa Informatyczno-Kulturalna) association.

RuPy – Python & Ruby Conference is a first conference of this sort in Poland. The idea behind the conference is to promote Ruby and Python programming languages in Poland and other Middle European countries. The conference should make exchange of knowledge and experiences with international community easier.

Mentioned programming languages are not well known in Poland, even though they are very popular in other parts of the world, mainly United States of America. Solutions based on this languages are known for their ease of use and high quality of the software.
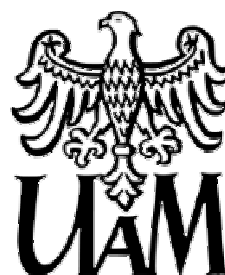

The Patronages of Honour of the conference are Mr Ryszard Grobelny, the Mayer of Poznan and His Magnificence, prof. dr hab. Kazimierz Przyszczypkowski, Rector of University of Adam Mickiewicz.

The conference is annual and it takes place in April each year. The first edition took place in 2007 and came out as a huge success. It was a valuable experience for both participants and lecturers. This year the committee encouraged by the success of previous edition and increasing interest of the community aims to organize a bigger event.
